Macro

United States

US government debt prices continued to fall on Monday with the yield on the 10-year US Treasury touching 2.2%, the highest since January. The bond selloff intensified after Trump's victory last week, amid rising expectations that a fiscal boost and tax cuts under Trump's presidency will raise inflation and make the Fed tighten faster than expected. The 30-year US Treasury yield reached 3%, also the highest since January.

Cyprus

Moody's upgraded its outlook for Cyprus' sovereign credit rating to positive from stable and affirmed the country's long-term foreign credit rating at B1.

Russia

The Russian economy shrank by 0.4% yoy in the third quarter of 2016, following 0.6% fall in the previous period. It was the smallest contraction in seven quarters. Russia remains stuck in recession, led by low oil prices, and sanctions over Ukraine that closed access to capital markets.

S&P predicts hard Brexit and fresh downgrade for UK

Britain is in store for a hard Brexit that will hit the UK economy and lay bare the deep divisions in British society, a leading ratings' agency has warned.

In a bleak assessment of the UK's prospects following the EU referendum, S&P Global Ratings said Britain was a diminishing global economic power on the verge of losing the ability to freely export goods and services to the EU. S&P said the UK was at risk of a further downgrade, following its unusual decision to slash the rating by two notches from the top AAA rating to AA, following the 23 June referendum.

Moritz Kraemer, S&P chief sovereign credit officer, said: "Far from healing festering wounds, as was then Prime Minister David Cameron's intention, the referendum has deepened and laid bare the schisms in British society. Most of the economic impact will hit Britain itself. The second-round effect on the world economy is likely to be more limited, as the UK economy accounts for a small and shrinking share of global GDP."

The agency cited data from the IMF, which suggested the UK's share of the world economy will shrink from about 5% in 1980 to just over 3% in 2020. Kraemer said: "It is hard to fathom how a rather hard Brexit can be avoided unless both sides become much more flexible than they appear today."

S&P was the last of the three main ratings agencies to strip the UK of its prestigious triple-A rating. Moody's and Fitch delivered the blow in 2013.

Bottom line

The PSG Wealth global solutions do not make use of funds that invest exclusively in any specific region, but use funds with a total global footprint in order to maximize the advantages of diversification.

The different fund managers have the freedom to change their regional exposure to minimise the regional specific risks. They will, however, maintain their exposure to those selected regional companies that are immune to these macro risks and still offer exceptional value.

Market note

Middle East operations weigh on Mediclinic

Mediclinic produced results below expectations, as a tough regulatory environment in the Middle East weighed on its earnings. The results from Southern Africa and Switzerland were in line with expectations.

Mediclinic International released their interim results which showed that the EBITDA margin fell to 17.1% compared to 19.7% last year. Further a 26% decrease in half-year earnings per share was recorded. Reasons behind its declining earnings include the issue of shares to acquire Al Noor and an increasingly tough regulatory environment in the Middle-East.

In October last year, Mediclinic acquired Al Noor for around £1.4 billion (R23 billion) – doubling its presence in the Middle-East and diversifying further outside of South Africa. In July big amendments were made to Abu Dhabi's health insurance programme called Thiqa by the health authority – stipulating that patients will pay more for healthcare at private facilities, in a bid to promote the use of state hospitals. Thiqa cardholders will now pay 20% of the cost of treatment at private hospitals – previously the plan fully covered the cost of all procedures at private healthcare facilities.

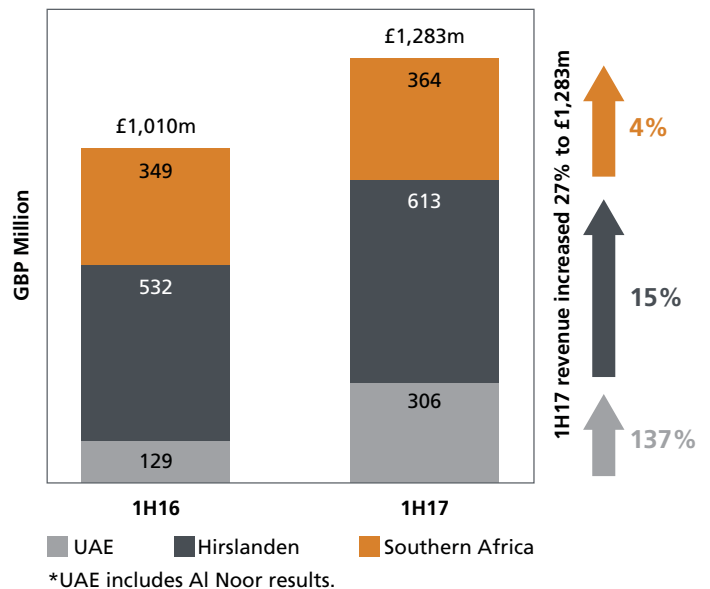

Furthermore, the Thiqa plan will only cover 50% of the cost if patients seek medical services outside Abu Dhabi (including Dubai and the Northern Emirates). In cases where specialised services and treatments are unavailable at healthcare facilities within the emirate of Abu Dhabi, however, the Thiqa plan will cover 100% of the treatment cost.

As a result of the regulatory changes, Mediclinic's CEO Danie Meintjes says the group has seen a significant reduction in Thiqa patient volumes since the amendment to the state's health plan. Mediclinic's Middle East operations – which includes five hospitals and 27 clinics with 687 beds – saw Thiqa outpatient volumes as a percentage of total patients fall to 14.7% from 21.6%. And inpatient Thiqa volumes as a percentage of total patients fell to 12.3% from 19.9%.

The introduction of the Thiqa co-payment has further impacted the group's near-term expectations for Thiqa revenues. Assuming current Thiqa volumes persist, the group expects an additional impact to full year revenues of around AED150m, leading to an overall decline in the Middle East revenues.
